Replete with music, song, dance, spirituality and satire, Southern Comfort will touch all of your senses with love and light. Aalani-Renee brings the urban gospel to the DC Arts Center, in a 90-minute theatrical experience that delves into the perils and pitfalls in the life of a PK (Preacher's Kid) gone bad. From drug experimentation to childhood rebellion, this multitalented performer leaves no stones unturned, and no questions unanswered during a unique presentation that is unrivaled among theatrical endeavors. The performance is based on her book, Southern Comfort, which releases for the first time, the night of the show – delivered free of charge to every customer with an accompanying audio book (CD).
