

I'm Not Oedipus

Written and performed by Jay Nachman

July 10, 9:15 p.m and Saturday, July 11, 9:15 p.m.

$15

For tickets: Capital Fringe Festival Box Office

"I've described "I'm Not Oedipus" as a play about death, family relationships and religion. With jokes. The short version is that after my mom died, my dad began dating very quickly and the family got ... dysfunctional. "I'm Not Oedipus" follows the path I took following my mom's death, with detours along the way for topics like sex and rock & roll. As I've said previously, I think it's the perfect show for anyone who has, or ever had, a mother. I hope you'll check it out. I know some of the other Fringe Festival acts have much bigger names than mine; some with 16-17, even 20 letters, and mine is only a mere 10, so I truly appreciate your attendance and interest. And I hope you enjoy the play."

- Jay Nachman