A four woman interactive poetry experience starring LOVE, the poet, Bria, Shelly Says So & Rebecca Dupas, four amazing writers from Baltimore City. The premise of the show is embodied in the title. The phrase "come on son" typically follows an idea or statement that is audacious in the mind of the speaker. The ladies of "Come on Son" are using poetry, comedy and song to tackle ideas and statements that tend to box women in categories. The show uses art to address stereotypes. Using four themes, that will alter in each city, the ladies of "Come on Son" tackle perceptions & misconceptions of love, anger, strength, identity, sexuality, and more in a dialogue that is comical yet thought-provoking.
