Sweaty palms, accelerated heartbeats: this October, WIT is redefining “stage fright.”

Every Washington Improv Theater show is a spontaneous, one-time-only event. There’s no telling what dangers will pop out of the dark, since none of the performers on stage have a script. This run features the improvised slasher film Die! Die! Die! and a witches brew of Halloween concoctions from WIT’s company ensembles and guest troupes from across the District.

Tickets will be made available through washingtonimprovtheater.com
