Panacea's Box is a series of miniatures that contemplate various ailments and present imagined “cures” based on the principle of correspondence. Inspired by my curiosity about perceptions and the subjective realities that result from them, these fictional remedies are crafted into small vignettes using dollhouse drawers, original photography and found objects.

Drawers and boxes are major components of all my assemblages; in addition to their organizing function, it is important that these vessels can hide contents, but also have the potential to reveal them.
